

A Page of His Words Delayed Expectations

Ken Nkadi OP

Zechariah and Elizabeth prayed faithfully, year after year, for a child. Yet heaven seemed silent. They lived in the tension of hope and unanswered prayers, expecting despite the delay. Little did they know, in the quiet of their waiting, God was preparing a miracle beyond their imagination.

DELAYED ANSWERS AREN'T DENIALS

Zechariah and Elizabeth were the original power couple, but life didn't go as planned. They wanted a child, prayed, fasted, and still... nothing. Sound familiar? Sometimes, you pray for a breakthrough—a job, a relationship, a sign—and the heavens seem silent. But here's the twist: God's delay isn't denial. When the angel Gabriel showed up, it was a reminder that God's timing is fashionably late but perfect.

My dear, life isn't always Insta-worthy, and that's okay. Faith is trusting that the unseen is still working. So, don't quit because the answer feels slow. Like Zechariah, keep showing up for your calling. When God moves, He'll exceed every expectation—think blockbuster, not teaser trailer.

GOD WORKS EVEN THROUGH OUR DOUBTS

Zechariah did what many of us would do—he questioned God's plan. "How can this happen?" he asked. Translation: "Seriously, bro?" It's easy to relate. Doubt creeps in when reality doesn't match our dreams. But here's the plot twist: God didn't cancel the promise because of Zechariah's doubt; He used it. Losing his voice wasn't punishment—it was God's way of saying, "Watch me work."

Doubt doesn't disqualify you. It's okay to ask questions and wrestle with your faith. What matters is sticking around for the answers. Zechariah's story reminds us that God's plans aren't fragile. He works through our doubts to build something even stronger: unshakeable faith.

YOUR STORY FITS GOD'S BIGGER PICTURE

John's story didn't start with him; it started with his parents. Zechariah and Elizabeth's ordinary lives became part of God's extraordinary plan. Your story is the same. Whether you're hustling in the cities or dreaming big from your hometown, God's got a role for you. Like John, your life is meant to make a difference. Maybe it's your voice, your kindness, or your hustle. Whatever it is, don't underestimate it.

Zechariah and Elizabeth weren't influencers; they were faithful. Their obedience set the stage for a world-changing mission. Don't get caught up comparing yourself to others. God's plan for you is unique, and it's bigger than you think. Step into it with confidence.

BOTTOM LINE

In the end, their waiting wasn't wasted. Zechariah and Elizabeth's story became a song of God's faithfulness. Their child, John, prepared the way for the Savior. God's timing, though mysterious, is always perfect. Trust the silence. Believe in the promise. The miracle is worth the wait.
